72-HOUR KITS

Advanced preparation can make a difference in emergency situations

In the case of a major emergency, families or students may need to be self-sufficient for up to 72 hours.

Possible disasters that could happen at any time are hurricanes, flash floods, hazardous materials spills, earthquakes, tornadoes, winter storms and fire.

After a disaster, local officials and relief workers will be on the scene, but they cannot reach everyone immediately. It would take approximately 72 hours to set up a shelter and, at first, many doctors are going to be concerned with their own families, explained Chloe Langston, Director of Military Social Services.

The American Red Cross stresses three things a person should know in case of an emergency.

First, he or she should know how to turn off gas, water, and electricity in the house or apartment. Second, a person should be familiar with first aid, and third, everyone should have a plan for reuniting his or her family.

The Red Cross also suggests six basics that people should stock in their home or apartment: water, food, first aid supplies, clothing and bedding, tools and emergency supplies and special items.

It is recommended that each member of the family, or each individual in the apartment, have these supplies already assembled in a place that is easy to get to and should have enough supplies in it to last each person up to 72 hours. The kit should be in an easy-to-carry container.

Several stores in Utah County sell 72-hour kits. Many of them also have mail-order facilities to service people living outside of Utah. A one-person kit costs between $29.95 and $144.95 depending on the kit selected. A two-person kit costs between $49.95 and $179.95.

The items in the more expensive kits are upgraded and come in larger quantities. They would include things such as a radio, port-a-potty, ready to eat meals and a wool blanket, explained Jennifer Johnson, an employee of Emergency Essentials in Orem. Most stores sell the items individually also. Many supplies can be bought at the local drugstore or grocery store.

Every home should be equipped with smoke detectors and a fire extinguisher. Smoke detectors should be cleaned and tested once a month and batteries should be changed at least once a year. Two escape routes should be planned out of each room in the home so that family members are ready for any emergency.

The American Red Cross urges students to be aware and to be prepared. Students are often the least prepared for an emergency for several reasons.

Most students have not taken the time to plan an emergency evacuation. In a shared apartment, students often forget to check their smoke detector because that is something that their parents have always done. While many students feel that they do not have the money to invest in a 72-hour emergency kit, preparing a simple kit could be enough to save a student's life.

Pamphlets with more information about being prepared are available at the American Red Cross Center.

Items to put into a Disaster Supplies Kit

- A supply of water (one gallon per person per day). Identify the storage date and replace every six months.
- A supply of non-perishable packaged or canned food and a non-electric can opener.
- A change of clothing, rain gear and sturdy shoes.
- Blankets or sleeping bags.
- A first aid kit and prescription medications.
- An extra pair of glasses.
- A battery-powered radio, flashlight and plenty of extra batteries.
- Credit cards and cash.
- An extra set of car keys.
- A list of family physicians.
- A list of important family information; the style and serial number of medical devices such as pacemakers.
- Special items for infants, elderly or disabled family members.

Suggestions and Reminders

- Store the kit in a convenient place known to all family members. Keep a smaller version of the Disaster Supplies Kit in the trunk of a car.
- Keep items in air-tight plastic bags.
- Change the stored water supply every six months so it stays fresh.
- Rotate the stored food every six months.
- Re-think the kit and family and individual needs at least once a year. Replace batteries, update clothes, etc.
- Ask a physician or pharmacist about storing prescription medications.

Springtime floods a possibility for Provo

By JASON WERNER
Universe Staff Writer

The surplus of snow in Utah's mountains is a skier's dream come true. But come spring, skiers' dreams may melt into nightmarish floods.

Warm weather turns snowpack into raging rivers that flow out of mountains and into the valleys.

Robert Carpenter, a Provo City Water Department engineer, says it is too early to determine if heavy flooding will be a problem during this year's spring thaw.

The water content in the Timpanogos Mountains is 179 percent of normal for this time of year," Carpenter said. "Average for the same time of year would be 14.4 inches; right now it is at 29.5 inches."

But snowpack depth is not the best indicator of potential flooding. The deciding factor will be how quick the thaw releases the water from the snowpack Carpenter said.

In 1983, the year spring flooding occurred throughout most of northern Utah, the snowpack was less than average. If the snowpack had melted at its normal rate there would not have been "The Floods of '83."

"It snowed very heavily in late April and early May so instead of melting, the snowpack increased with all the new wet snow," Carpenter said. "The late snow melt in May brought it all down at once."

To deal with the heavy runoff, Provo City turned two city streets into roaring rivers. Third South and 2300 North were lined with sandbags to channel the water from Rock and Slate canyons through town and towards Utah Lake.

This year's snowpack has three times as much water content as 1983's. The heavy snows hold the possibility of flooding this year if temperatures in the mountains rise quickly during the spring thaw.

Barbara Axelgard of the Utah County Emergency Management Office said residents should be aware of flooding possibilities every spring.

"Be aware of conditions," Axelgard said. "Know where the water is coming from and how it will affect you."

Axelgard said news and weather reports will help residents stay informed of flood possibilities.

Provo City Senior Planner Al Mickelson said it is a good idea to know where you live in relation to local flood plains.

Flood plains are areas that are likely to be covered by water during a flood.

Mickelson identified areas near canyon mouths, Utah Lake and areas of lower elevation along the Provo River.

Because of the varied topography in Utah County, it is a good idea to check a map detailing the locations of local flood plains, Mickelson said.

Maps detailing Utah County's flood plains are available through city flood plain administrators.

Axelgard said residents can consult local offices of emergency management to find projected flooding water depths for areas throughout Utah County.

The office also has maps of planned evacuation routes that should be used in case of major flooding.

Residents should always have a 72-hour emergency kit in case of flooding or other natural disaster, Axelgard said.

Planning ahead for power outages can make living in the dark easier and less terrifying

By AD PETERSON
Universe Staff Writer

Even though many organizations such as the police and fire departments and hospitals have sufficient electrical backup systems, most Provo residents do not have backup generators in the case of a long-term power outage. Usually, it isn't until the power is gone that people realize how vulnerable they are without electrical power. Johnson, a construction coordinator for Provo City, said the power company gets flooded with telephone calls in an outage occurs. However, Johnson said they encourage calls because it helps to locate the area where the outage happened.

Whittaker, district manager of Utah Power in Orem, said the speed in which the power company can restore power can depend on where the electrical outage occurred.

"Overall, we have better reliability on our overhead system than our underground, and it's quicker response time too because you can find the problem a lot quicker than you can with the underground (power system) because you have to use underground locating equipment to find the fault," Whittaker said.

Robert Rhoads, a utilities engineer at BYU's Physical Plant, said BYU's fire alarms, as required by code, work on a battery system and many of BYU's buildings have some sort of emergency power available to them (such as emergency lights) to help people leave a building in the event of an emergency.

Aaron Gibson, an industrial account manager at Utah Power, said there is a chance that electrical appliances can be damaged by a surge of electricity when lightning strikes or when power is restored after a blackout.

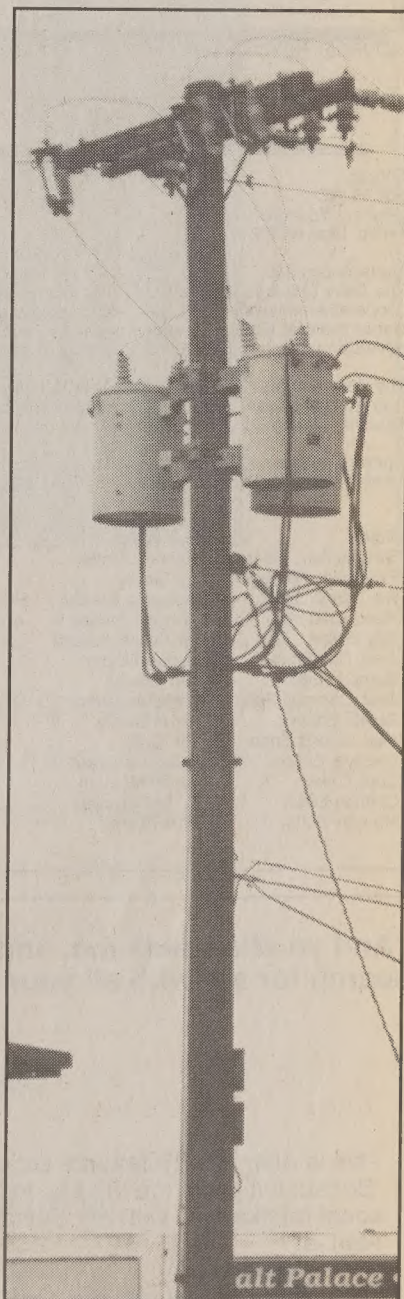

One of the immediate concerns in power outages is food spoilage. A freezer full of frozen food can keep cold for 48 hours and a freezer half full of frozen food can keep cold for 24 hours.

If hot water heaters are drained to prevent water from freezing, the circuit breaker that controls the water heater should be turned off. The heating element in the water heater will burn out if power is restored and the water heater tank is turned on and does not contain water.

If a power line falls on your car while you are in it, you should drive away from the line rather than stopping and exiting the car. If driving away is impossible, you should stay in your car and wait for help to arrive. If it is necessary to leave a car that has come in contact with a fallen power line, you should jump from the car and avoid touching the ground and the car at the same time.

Lack of heat can also be a big problem during a long-term power outage because furnace motors cannot disperse heat to the home. A charcoal grill should not be used as a heater because it gives off more carbon monoxide than a car's engine.

Violence in Sarajevo keeps power off

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — U.N. peacekeepers gave up trying to restore power in Sarajevo after repair crews were shot at in fighting that escalated after the collapse of peace talks, U.N. officials said Sunday.

Heavy fighting also was reported in other parts of the former Yugoslav republic.

In neighboring Croatia, that republic's president threatened to expand a 10-day-old offensive against Serbs in southern Croatia. Meanwhile, a gaping hole that developed in a bombed dam in Croatia was repaired, but the structure still posed a danger of flooding for 20,000 people living downstream.

U.N. officers said three teams of engineers and military observers would not try to fix a main electrical transmission line in Sarajevo after coming under heavy fire Saturday despite written guarantees of a cease-fire by the city's Muslim-led defenders and Serb forces besieging the city.

With temperatures below freezing, only about a fifth of Sarajevo gets any electricity, and most of it is reserved for vital institutions such as hospitals, bakeries and the presidency.

None of the approximately 40 U.N. team members was hurt.

Angolan currency rate takes a plunge

LUANDA, Angola — The government announced a drastic currency devaluation Sunday that acknowledged the deep economic damage caused by its loss of oil- and diamond-producing regions to rebels.

The move will bring the official exchange rate into line with black market rates and could intensify unrest in Luanda and other government-held cities by causing prices of imported necessities to soar.

Many former government soldiers demobilized under a peace accord with the rebels still have their weapons and already are angry over the government's failure to provide promised jobs.

The May 1991 accord collapsed after rebel leader Jonas Savimbi rejected the defeat his group, the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, suffered in September elections. Thousands have died since Oct. 31, adding to a toll of more than 350,000 in 16 years of civil war.

Gays in military pose new problems

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Les Aspin must answer some of the most complex issues involving privacy and the sexual conduct of troops before President Clinton can issue an executive order allowing homosexuals in the military, officials say.

The questions he is studying include the possible segregation of homosexuals from heterosexuals, whether in military units or in living quarters, as is now the situation for female troops in many cases.

The problem is heightened by the fact that both proponents and opponents of changing the ban agree that homosexuals are now serving in the military and have not been separated for special treatment — except for being kicked out.

Studying such questions doesn't necessarily mean they might be implemented but they present a plethora of problems that Aspin, military leaders and Congress must wrestle with in the coming months.

Clinton suffers high disapproval rating

WASHINGTON — The Clinton administration, burdened with the highest disapproval ratings of any new president in decades, is struggling to regain control of its message after an unexpected honeymoon detour.

"The economy is what he was elected on and that's what people are waiting for," said Jeff Faux, director of the Economic Policy Institute, a labor union-based think tank.

Already distancing himself from campaign promises for a middle-class tax cut and halving the deficit in four years, Clinton has promised to outline his economic plan in a Feb. 17 speech to Congress.

A Newsweek magazine poll released Saturday showed 32 percent of Americans disapproved of the way Clinton is handling the job, while a USA Today-CNN poll released several days earlier gave him a 20 percent disapproval rating. These were the worst approval ratings for any new president since the Gallup Organization started such measures in 1953 with the Eisenhower administration.

At the same time, 73 percent of respondents in the USA Today-CNN poll said they didn't know what Clinton would do about the economy, up from 64 percent in a Dec. 20 poll.

Food storage can be difficult

By GENET MARIE ORME
Universe Staff Writer

While many home making meetings concentrate on food storage, it is usually not the first thing on most students' minds.

"I never thought about food storage as a student and I know no one in my apartment has any food storage," said Steve Fife, 21, a sophomore, an undeclared major from Merced, Calif.

"I don't feel having food storage is practical as a student because nothing is stationary. We don't have a permanent home; every year I have to pick up and move somewhere else. I don't feel there is really anything you can do about it unless you live at home or something," said Ali Owens, 20, an education major from Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

Limited space and a limited money supply offer challenges to students if the counsel to have a food storage is to be followed.

"When I was a single student, I didn't really think food storage and things of that nature were applicable to me. I think I could have been more educated, and if I had been a little more enterprising I could have done something," said Wendy McFarland, a former student from El Cajon, Calif.

"My husband and I have some water storage, the basic food storage with flour, salt, honey and canned vegetables, and a 72-hour kit. What you are able to do depends on the space available in your apartment, but I feel everyone has room for a 72-hour kit," McFarland said.

"The main thing is to just get started and then you can add on from there. We told our ward the first thing to do is find something to put your storage in. Whether it is a suitcase or a knapsack. Find something you can put a few things into, in case of an emergency," said Dexter Joyner, 24, an exercise science major from Atlanta, Ga.

In his book "The Teachings of Ezra Taft Benson" President Benson said, "For years we have been counseled to have on hand a year's supply of food. Yet there are some today who will not start storing until the Church comes out with a detailed monthly home storage program. Now, suppose that never happens. We still cannot say we have not been warned."

"Our stake has a pilot program set up to deal in different areas of the Church welfare program. My wife and I attend meetings every month to get information to bring back to our ward. We initiated a food storage and 72-hour kit program through our Relief Society, where they put together kits in plastic containers that don't take much room," Joyner said.

"My wife and I have taken a closet in our bedroom and put metal shelves in it. When we go to the store, we buy one extra can of food or something to put on the shelves and add to our food storage. This way we are slowly building up. We also had the opportunity to do some canning last summer. It is also helpful because my father gives all of his married children something for their food storage every Christmas."

NASA considering English 316 project

By ANTHONY DORMINEY
Universe Staff Writer

Dr. J. Ward Moody agrees with BYU English professor George Campbell that good really does come out of advanced writing term

Students are working to develop a soft X-ray telescope in English 316 that their project will be completed aboard a NASA space shuttle within the next year.

The project, known as Goldhelox, was designed for the purpose of studying the sun, said J. Ward Moody, associate professor of physics and astronomy.

Project director Branton Moody, 24, a senior in physics, said the project was developed five years ago by former BYU student James Moody, who thought his English 316 class contained the elements necessary to develop into a fine project and other BYU students had project approval and support on the project designs, Moody said.

When Goldhelox is ready for space, it will be placed in a "get away special," a small compartment on the inside of a shuttle's bay, and observations will take place from there Campbell said.

"We have 90% of the project completed, but the hard ten percent is still to come," Moody said.

Moody said that after the project is completed, the only problem left is finding the perfect shuttle mission. "We need a shuttle flight pattern that will align the telescope with the direction of the sun," Moody said.

Moody said NASA has given BYU permission to build the project and to Visiting professor says Russian future uncertain

By ANTHONY HAMILTON

Difficulty in making reliable forecasts concerning the future of Russia was one of the main points of discussion at the final lecture of International Week.

Reader Livishin, a visiting professor from Moscow State University, spoke to BYU students about the current development in Russia. Livishin holds a doctorate in modern Russian history, politics and is teaching current issues in BYU's history department.

"The political instability in Russia is anything that can happen," Livishin said.

He said that some of the forecasts made in November 1992 to BYU students proved to be true.

College Council expands programs

By REBECCA REEVES
Universe Staff Writer

Two programs sponsored by the Student Alumni Association are now also being offered through the Student Life College Council.

Dinner for 12 Strangers and the Student's Award for Excellence in Teaching will now be offered to students through the Student Life College Council, in addition to being offered through the 11 academic colleges on campus.

Dinner for 12 Strangers is a program where students get together for dinner with a professor so they can get to know each other outside the classroom setting. In the past, each academic college represented in SAA-sponsored dinners with several of their professors once a semester. With the Fall 1991 addition of Student Life to SAA, they will also sponsor dinners this semester.

The Student Life dinners will include separate dinners for international students, multicultural students, and disabled students. Selected students will dine with faculty members from their group, said Frank Susa, president of Student Life College Council and sophomore from Providence, RI majoring in philosophy.

Susa said disabled students were mailed an invitation last week to join a faculty member for dinner. Of those who respond to the invitation, 12 will be randomly selected to participate in the dinner.

Multicultural and international students were randomly called from a master telephone list and personally invited. As soon as they get 12 positive responses, they will stop calling, Susa said.

Dates for the dinners are as follows: international students — Feb. 20, multicultural students — Feb. 25, and disabled students — March 4. The dinners will be held in the Wilkinson Center.

The Students' Award for Excellence in Teaching, the SAA program where seniors vote for their favorite teacher will also be available through the Student Life College Council. Multicultural students, international students and disabled students will each vote for faculty members from within their group to receive an excellence in teaching award.

Ballots for nominations will be mailed to disabled students along with their invitation for dinner with 12 strangers this week. International students and multicultural students who wish to nominate one of their favorite faculty may do so by going to 366 SWKT and filling out a ballot or mailing their nomination and why they nominate that person to 366 SWKT, Susa said.

The Students' Award for Excellence in Teaching will be given at a banquet March 6 in the Memorial Lounge, said Ida Smith, Student Alumni programs coordinator.

The programs are designed to help students "develop permanent friendships with other students and with members of BYU's faculty," one of student alumni association's missions, Susa said.

Dallas Cowboy running back Emmitt Smith blasts through San Francisco defenders during the Cowboys' NFC championship victory Jan. 18. Smith outgained the Bills' all-pro running back Thurman Thomas 108 yards to 19 in the Cowboys' 55-17 victory in Super Bowl XXVII. The Bills committed a Super Bowl record nine turnovers in the game.

Turnovers help Cowboys crush Bills

Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. — It was quicker than anyone could imagine. Three seasons ago, the Dallas Cowboys were the worst team in NFL history. Now they're Super Bowl champions and they did it with four of the quickest touchdowns ever.

That left the Buffalo Bills as the first team to lose three straight Super Bowls and the NFC's supremacy intact — nine straight NFL titles, seven in overwhelming fashion, this time 52-17.

With MVP Troy Aikman throwing for four touchdowns and Charles Haley and Ken Norton leading a defense that forced a record nine turnovers, the Cowboys scored two touchdowns 15 seconds apart in the first period of Sunday's Super Bowl and two more 18 seconds apart in the second.

"Our defense is somebody now," Norton said of a unit that had no Pro Bowlers to six for Dallas' offense. "Everybody knows who we are."

Along with Aikman, the defense was the factor that made Buffalo the first team to lose three straight Super Bowls after becoming just the second team to make it three straight times.

"You always wonder why, why us?" said Buffalo quarterback Jim Kelly, who was knocked out of the game with 6:52 in the first half when he resprained his right knee. "We turned the ball over nine times and you can't beat a college team doing that."

Two of Aikman's TD passes went to Michael Irvin and one each to Jay Novacek and Alvin Harper as the NFC East won the Super Bowl for the third straight year, a record. The three winners were different — Dallas, Washington and the New York Giants — but the victim each time was the Bills.

"Early on, the whole team was a little uptight," said Aikman, who was 22 of 30 for 273 yards. "I really had to talk myself into staying relaxed out there. This is the greatest feeling that I've ever had in my life and I wish every player could feel it."

There was another first — Jimmy Johnson became the first coach ever to win both a national college title and a Super Bowl. The NFL title came just three years after he began his pro coaching career with a 1-15 record.

It was the Cowboys' third Super Bowl victory, but their first in 15 years and Johnson got his just reward — a dousing by his players at the 2-minute warning that left his hairsprayed coiffure uncharacteristically mussed.

"I played for a national championship team, I coached a national championship team and I coached a Super Bowl team," Johnson said. "There's a common thread in all three — quality people who are committed to do their best."

The Cowboys gave defensive coordinator Dave Wannstedt the ultimate goodbye present, a Super Bowl ring to wear to Chicago.

"I can leave for the Bears knowing my job is complete," Wannstedt said. "I can leave with a good feeling knowing that everything we worked for the last four years paid off. As young as these Cowboys are they will be on top a long time."

The NFL's youngest team knocked out Kelly, saved one touchdown with an end zone interception on a brilliant goal-line stand, and caused turnovers that produced four scores in Sunday's rout of the Buffalo Bills.

"Our youth showed up," Wannstedt said. "We knew we'd have to take the ball away from them to win and we did it. It was an even game except for those turnovers."

Wannstedt's masterpiece included a bit of mind-reading of the Buffalo offense on a fourth-and-1 call with the Bills trailing just 14-7 in the first half.

Wannstedt figured the Bills would pass from the 1 and he sent in an extra defensive back. Wannstedt was correct and the confused Kelly served up an interception to Thomas Everett.

"It was a big play, maybe the biggest play of the game," Wannstedt said. "We thought they might pass and that's the way it turned out. It was a big momentum swing."

The Dallas defense vowed to win the game for Wannstedt.

Weekend summary

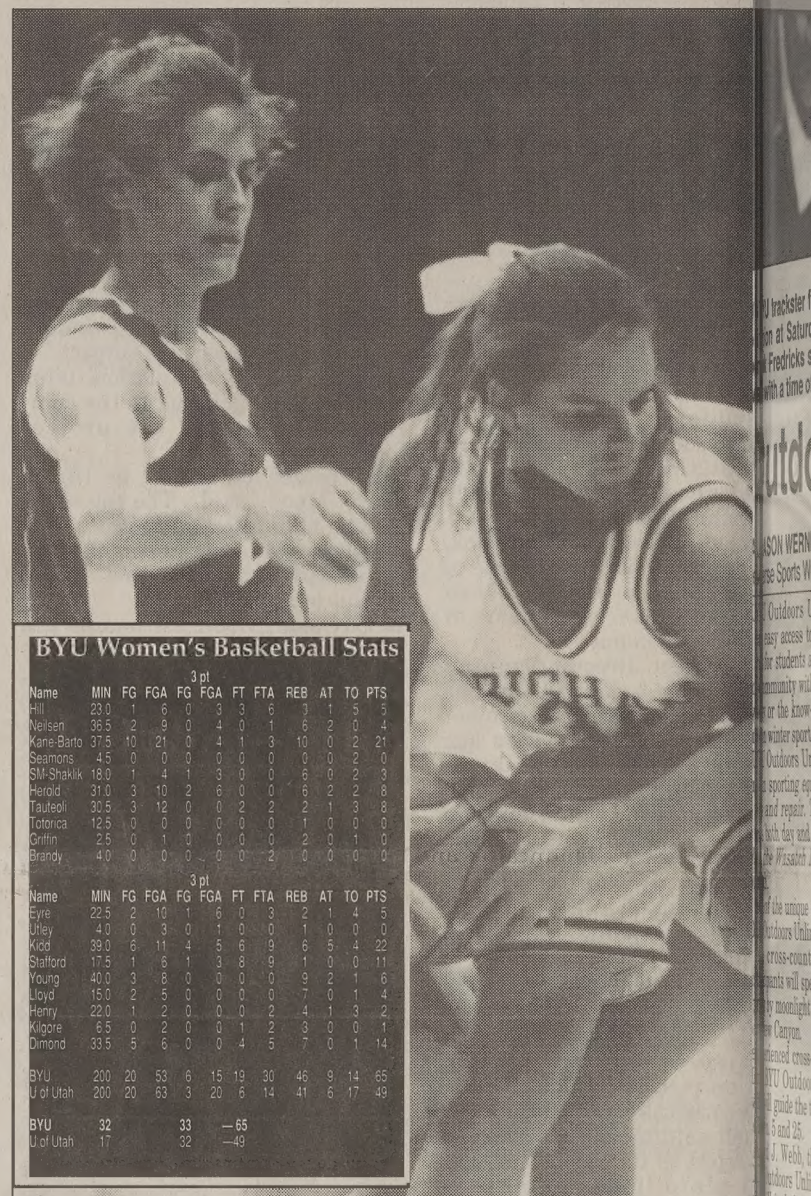

- The BYU men's basketball team cruised past Wyoming 77-64 Saturday in Laramie. The win, coupled with a University of Utah loss to Colorado State, pushed the 15-5, 8-1 in WAC Cougars into a first place tie in the WAC with Utah.
- The Cougar women's basketball team remained unbeaten in WAC play by stomping Utah 65-49 before 2,274 in the Marriott Center. BYU was led by Thais Kidd's 22 points. "I think (the win) was a great team accomplishment," coach Jeanie Wilson said.
- The men's gymnastics team scored the highest team score in the nation this year in their 280.3 to 271 victory over Arizona State Friday night.
- The injury-ravaged women's gymnastics team used only three gymnasts in their 195.55 to 106.00 defeat to Utah Saturday at the Huntsman Center. • The BYU swim team spent their Fridays celebrating the Air Force Academy. The women won 10 of 13 events, while the men won 116.50 to 71.00. • Pro Wrestler Andre the Giant died of an heart attack in Pasadena, Calif. He was 46.

Outdoors Unlimited provides winter fun

JOHANN WERNER
Staff Sports Writer

BYU Outdoors Unlimited provides easy access to the great outdoors for students and members of the community with limited time, to enjoy or the know-how to participate in winter sports.

BYU Outdoors Unlimited specializes in sporting equipment rental, repair and maintenance. The store also has both day and overnight trips to the Wasatch Mountains and the Lake Powell area.

One of the unique trips offered by Outdoors Unlimited is a night cross-country ski trip. Participants will spend the evening on top of the mountain by moonlight near the top of the Wasatch Mountain.

For experienced cross-country skiers, Outdoors Unlimited's trips will guide the trips. Trip dates are Feb. 5 and 25.

David J. Webb, the manager of Outdoors Unlimited, said the trips will include basic instruction for people without cross-country skiing experience.

David Horman, a junior majoring in wildlife and range management, is one of the BYU Outdoors Unlimited employees who guided the year's moonlight ski trips. "I've been on the people on last year's trip and had previous cross-country skiing experience," said Horman.

Webb started out in a big meadow and practiced how to do the turns. "I know how to handle hills; everyone is laughing and having a ball," Horman said.

BYU Outdoors Unlimited will offer other day trips throughout the winter semester. Trips offered include nordic skiing, snow camping and snow caving. Trips into Nutty Putty Cave.

In most cases, the trips cost less than $16 and include instruction, transportation, insurance and transportation to and from the activity.

A winter camping and ski tour is also available through BYU Outdoors Unlimited Feb. 5-6 and Feb. 26-27. Participants will build snow caves and then spend the night in their cave.

Everyone who goes on the trip must attend a pre-trip meeting to discuss the clothing, equipment and skills necessary for the trip.

Webb said all of BYU Outdoors Unlimited's trips are subject to cancellation or postponement depending on the weather and if too few people register for the trips.

Webb said BYU Outdoors Unlimited and its programs offer practical experience for the student staff who work there. BYU Outdoors Unlimited's purpose is not only the rental and retail of sporting good equipment, but also the encouragement of personal growth of employees and customers.

"There is something magical about participating in activities in the outdoors that challenges you, that helps you better understand how you relate to other people, how you relate to the world and how you relate to your God," Webb said.

BYU Outdoors Unlimited offers equipment rental for many winter sports including nordic and alpine skiing, snowboarding, snowshoeing, snow camping and hiking.

Car kit a must for winter driving

ERIC JAMISON
Universe Staff Writer

Winter driving conditions require special care and preparation for an emergency. Drivers should always have and know how to use a jack and a spare tire. Sergeant David Decker of the Utah Highway Patrol, and depending on the conditions and how far away from civilization a driver is going, they may want to take additional precautions. Tires are a good idea any time of the year to warn other drivers if you can't get completely off the road.

Decker said drivers should drive in the top half of their tank and not frequently many cars "break down" just after passing a gas station. Debbie Miles, an American Automobile Association representative, said she tells drivers they should always have a first-aid kit, tools and a spare tire. When traveling during the winter, she said drivers should have blankets, food and water. Decker cautioned drivers to slow down in storm conditions and to tune to a local radio station for weather updates. According to an Air Force publication, carrying coats, blankets, freeze-dried or concentrated foods, flashlight and extra batteries, tools or reflectors and a tow rope can "save your life."

Another Air Force publication says, "a box of sand, a shovel, flashlight, a snow brush, scraper, a flare, candy bars, nuts, and extra coat and gloves or heavy blanket should get you through any storm safely while you stay in your car to be rescued."

According to a state Civil Defense publication, travelers who have become trapped in their cars during a blizzard should stay calm and wait for help.

As it may take help a matter of hours to reach travelers, they should stay in their vehicles to avoid direct exposure to the cold and hypothermia, the sometimes fatal loss of body heat.

The same Civil Defense publication says that walking for help in a blizzard is dangerous as it is easy to become lost in blowing snow. A downwind window should be opened slightly to keep fresh air in the car, to avoid the dangers of oxygen starvation and carbon monoxide poisoning.

Decker pointed out that opening the window can help keep the moisture level in the car down, which could keep the occupants warmer.

Renters insurance may cut student losses

By TODD FAIRBOURNE

Whether single or married, BYU students face the possibility of fire, broken pipes and theft as renters in Utah County.

Unfortunately, few think about purchasing renters insurance as a safeguard against such perils.

Many people get fooled into thinking their personal belongings are secured. On or off campus, BYU does not provide insurance for students' belongings; the responsibility lies with the individual. John Pace of Off-Campus Housing reminds students that the standard rental agreement reads, "The tenant is strongly advised to secure insurance to protect his/her belongings from such occurrences."

Donald Tregasikis, a local insurance agent, explained that many students' property is protected under their parents' home-owners policy as long as they remain a full-time, single student. Students should check with their parents to make sure they are covered.

Renters insurance is similar to auto insurance. It replaces, repairs or reimburses the policy holder for personal belongings in the rented apartment that are stolen or damaged by outside elements. Of course there are limitations.

While each insurance company has different guidelines, renters policies are usually very similar. The policy is divided into two primary sections of coverage, Personal Property and Personal Liability. The purchaser decides on the maximum coverage amount. This can vary from $15,000 to $25,000 for a standard policy. Such a policy comes with a yearly premium of between $70 and $150, translating to a $6 to $15 a month.

BYUSA candidate selection begins with interviews today

Editors note: The Daily Universe will publish an issues page about the BYUSA presidential selection process on Wednesday.
By ALISHA HAMILTON
Universe Staff Writer

The BYUSA presidential selections/elections process got started this morning when a nominating committee met to discuss possible interview questions for presidential applicants.

There are 6 candidates being considered: 5 males and 1 female. Four of the potential candidates are current BYUSA officers, one is currently working with BYUSA, and one is not currently working with BYUSA, said an unnamed BYUSA source.

The BYUSA presidential process has been somewhat of a mystery to the BYU community. Some professors agreed that the process is not well-known.

"I'm not familiar with the process of BYUSA presidential elections. It seems like the organization has changed so much that people got confused and are currently unaware," said Dr. Russ Crane, professor of family sciences.

What does one have to do to become BYUSA president?

First, students must fill out an application to see if they meet the general requirements. The applicant must be a full-time student with a cumulative GPA of 3.0 or higher. The student must support the University's Honor Code and Dress and Grooming Standards, with anyone on University Honor Code probation automatically excluded.

Also in the application are questions like "Why do you want to be BYUSA president?" and "How will you build on the current work of the president? What will you change? What will be the same?" One question challenges the applicant to solve the problem of football and basketball ticket distribution.

After the applications are reviewed, anyone fulfilling the general requirements is called into an interview conducted by the official nominating committee.

The nominating committee is supposed to represent the general student body, and consists of the Dean of Student Life, a dean of a college, a faculty representative, two members of the outgoing BYUSA presidency, two representatives of the Student Advisory Council and three BYU students chosen at random.

The BYUSA charter states, "The nominating committee will consider candidates' participation and experience within the organization, their ability to develop and communicate the vision of the Student Association, their ability to direct the organization in the accomplishment of its mission, and their standing (academic and university standards) in the University community."

"The committee will be asking the applicants questions to see if they qualify in the areas of leadership, experience, knowledge of BYUSA, potential for success, and vision," said Jenny Oman, director of the presidential election.

"The BYUSA presidential process was changed Winter Semester 1988 by a Rechartering Committee. They established this process, including the idea of a nominating committee and who would be on it," said David Lucero, coordinator of student leadership development.

These people were chosen to represent the student body, with five members involved with BYUSA, and five members not involved, Lucero said.

Lucero said he believed the new process allows for a broader range of people to fill positions in BYUSA. People who don't feel comfortable with running for an office still have the opportunity to be appointed to one.

During the campaigning, the candidates are allotted a campus credit of $200.00 for goods and services located on campus. No additional money or materials may be used according to the official campaign rules.

The interview process will keep out people that are not serious about the position and the money will not be wasted on these people, said Lucero.

The interviews for the applicants are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday with the decision to be announced Feb. 3 at 6 p.m. in ELWC Step-down Lounge, along with the winners of the SAC elections, said Joshua Graham, BYUSA public relations program director for the elections.

A debate has been scheduled for Feb. 3 at 7 p.m. in 347 ELWC. BYUSA sponsored clubs will ask questions to the candidates, Graham said.

The primary elections will be Feb. 10, with the winners announced that evening. The final campaigning will take place Feb. 11 through 18, with the final voting on Feb. 17 and 18. The new BYUSA president will be announced on Feb. 18.

Governors tackle health care, education in first gathering

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's governors, saying universal health care is a "moral imperative," began formal consideration Sunday for their proposal to extend coverage to all Americans.

The proposal adopted by a committee of the National Governors Association calls for guaranteed access to health care for every citizen and minimum federal standards to reduce medical liability costs.

Under its "managed competitive" approach, the government would maintain a national database through which consumers could receive information about the cost and quality of health care services.

In addition, the government would expand its support for primary and preventive health care programs, including periodic health screenings, prenatal care, well-baby care and childhood immunizations.

"Everybody's looking for a broad-based basic framework," said South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell, a Republican and member of the committee that designed the plan.

The full association will vote Tuesday on the plan, which will be presented to Congress and President Clinton, who only recently left the organization's ranks. The governors will meet Monday with Clinton to discuss health care and other issues.

Democratic Gov. Evan Bayh of Indiana said governors were motivated by fears that the economy and federal budget deficit will not improve "unless we deal with health care."

Texas Gov. Ann Richards, a Democrat, abandoned an attempt to exclude the so-called "tort reform" language addressing medical liability costs. The final draft of the plan proposes that Congress set nationwide limits on malpractice liability and allow states to adopt even tighter restrictions.

Gov. Lawton Chiles, a Florida Democrat, warned that the federal government "ain't gonna want this ball" and Congress would prefer that the states deal with the issue.

Cost containment is a major focus of the proposal, which says that costs cannot be controlled "unless and until every legal resident has health insurance."

It goes on to say that "universal health care is both a moral imperative and an invaluable cost containment tool."
